

OA.636

Mondry, Henrietta, 'Sir Isaiah Berlin (1909–1997)' (in Russian), in a Russian collection: Mikhail Parkhomovsky and Andrey Rogachevsky (eds), Russian Jews in Great Britain: Articles, Publications, Memoirs and Essays [Russian Jewry Abroad, vol. 2] (Jerusalem, 2000: Mikhail Parkhomovsky)

The English philosopher Isaiah Berlin always remained a custodian of Jewish identity and a friend of Israel. Familiarity with Russian intellectual thought and his European education assisted the development of this thinker. Discussed here are Berlin's meetings with Freud and Pasternak, his friendship with Chaim Weizmann and Anna Akhmatova, his lecturing work, and his diplomatic service in Moscow and Washington, as well as his publications Historical Inevitability, The Age of Enlightenment and Four Essays on Liberty.